Dedication

In dedicating the 1976 edition of the TERRA MARIAE we honor one who has devoted twenty-five years to the service of the University of Maryland School of Pharmacy - Dr. Casimir T. Ichniowski. Through these years, Dr. Ichniowski has gained respect for his knowledge as an educator and admiration for his concern as a friend. As Assistant Dean, Director of Student Financial Aid and Emerson Professor of Pharmacology he has touched the lives of almost every student for he has had a close association with each class. For his willingness to help, his understanding manner, and his kind words, we pay tribute and appreciation to our friend, Dr. Casimir Ichniowski.

History of the

The art and science of pharmacy has come a long way in the past two hundred years. Many men and women have served the course of progress, like that which has brought so many changes in this country, to further the quality of pharmacy care in Maryland.

The state of pharmacy, and medicine in general, as it was practiced in this colony of Maryland, was rather unchanged from the time of the ancients. Apothecaries received their training as apprentices. Practitioners who took apprentices generally promised to teach them the "art and mystery of physic, surgery and pharmacy." The apprentice learned by compounding for his master, searching the woods for medicinal plants and accompanying his teacher on visits to patients.

In the early nineteenth century, the need for an institution where apprentices could receive a systematic course of instruction in pharmacy was realized by several prominent Maryland physicians and pharmacists. On July 20, 1840, they founded the Maryland College of Pharmacy. A charter for the school was granted a year later by the Maryland General Assembly. The first courses of instruction, which comprised of chemistry, pharmacy and materia medica, began in November 1841, in a single small room on Gay Street in Baltimore. The first class of students was graduated on June 19, 1842. Later classes were moved to the amphitheater of the University of Maryland. Thomas G. Mackenzie was elected to be the first president of the college in 1840, followed by Benjamin R. Roberts in 1842 and George W. Andrews in 1844.

In 1847, classes were suspended due to the death or change of occupation of several members of the college. In 1856, at the request of the graduates and several Baltimore pharmacists, President Andrews called for the reorganization of the college and the election of new members. Classes began again in 1857 in rooms rented at Calvert and Water Streets. In 1858, rooms were rented from the Medical and Chirurgical Faculty of Maryland. Ten years later, the college moved to 12 West Baltimore Street. In 1876, the college purchased its own facilities, a former public school building located on Aisquith Stree near Fayette Street. This building was at firs remodeled, then followed by a new building erecte on the old site in 1886. Andrews served as preside until 1871, and was followed in succession during tl next twenty-five years by Dr. J. Brown Baxley, D J. Faris Moore, Dr. John F. Hancock, Dr. Jose Roberts, Dr. Edwin Eareckson, Mr. William Thompson, and Mr. Louis Dohme. Dr. Charles Caspari, Jr. was then appointed Dean of the Colle of Pharmacy in 1896, and continued as Dean of t Department of Pharmacy after the merger of the cc lege, in 1904, with the medical and dental scho to form the University of Maryland. Following the death of Dean Caspari in 1917, Dr. Daniel Base became Dean for a short time, then was followed by Dr. Evander Kelly in 1918. In 1920, the University of Maryland joined with the Maryland State College at College Park, and the old Department of Pharmacy became the University of Maryland School of Pharmacy. Dr. Andrew G. DuMez became Dean six years later.

In 1929, funds were appropriated by the Maryland legislature for the construction of a new Pharmacy and Dental School building at Lombard and Greene Streets. At this time, graduate instruction was also begun, which awarded its first two Ph.D. degrees in 1933. Following the death of Dean DuMez in 1948, B. Olive Cole became Acting Dean until 1949 when the position was filled by Dr. Noel E. Foss. In 1968, the present Dean, William J. Kinnard was appointed to the chief position of the School of Pharmacy. In 1958, a new School of Pharmacy building on Lombard Street, Dunning Hall, was completed and today houses the departments of Pharmacy, Pharmacology and the Maryland Poison Information Center. The old pharmacy and dental building was renovated in the early seventies and houses the departments of Pharmacognosy, Medicinal Chemistry and Pharmacy Administration. In 1975, the school initiated its Pharm.D. program, and expects to graduate its first clinically orientated Doctors of Pharmacy in 1977. There are plans in the making for the construction of a new home for the School of Pharmacy on Baltimore Street next to the Dental School. This new building is expected to provide room for a class of at least 100 students each year.

Much has changed in pharmacy education in Maryland in the past few centuries. The course of instruction of drug specialists has developed from an apprentice system in the eighteenth century, to an apprentice system enhanced with lectures in theoretical science in the nineteenth century, to a complete background education of pharmaceutical science courses complimented with practical laboratory and field experiences in the twentieth century. This shows how much the practice of pharmacy has changed from a physical art form to a dynamic science that requires intense study.

Today the University of Maryland School of Pharmacy plays a prominent role in the advance of knowledge in the pharmacy sciences and its practice. Members of the faculty and student body are active in ongoing research, professional policy making and community practice. And the school is steadily increasing and improving its facilities to enable it to provide instruction in keeping with the modern standards of the profession. The result is a steady growth in size and influence so that the University of Maryland School of Pharmacy holds a position in the front ranks of teaching institutions of its kind in the country.

Some aspects of pharmacy never change. From decades past to the present, no matter how modern his education, a pharmacist's job is to provide his patients with the best of care.

Dean's Message

It is appropriate during this Bicentennial year of our country's history that we recognize that the profession of pharmacy is a reflection of the strengths and weaknesses of its individual practitioners. Our School was started by a group of pharmacists and physicians who recognized an existing need and were determined to do something about it. This is evidenced in the original handwritten Journal of the Maryland College of Pharmacy that is in the archives of our School. This journal contains the minutes of that first meeting on June 8, 1840 when a group of eight pharmacists and three physicians agreed to establish a College of Pharmacy for the State of Maryland; a formidable step in any era. Their original charter which was approved by the State Legislature in January 1841 indicates that the purpose of the College was "for the purpose of cultivating, improving, and making known a knowledge of pharmacy and its collateral branches of science, and of giving of instruction in the same by public lectures." While the words of our statement of goals may be different, the intention of that first charter is unchanged.

Each of you, as members of the graduating class of 1976, will enter your profession during an interesting and difficult time. There are fewer jobs available, especially those that are of the ideal situation for which each student searches. There are economic pressures on the practice of pharmacy to reduce costs. Yet at the same time, the profession and its practice is changing. Pharmacists are increasing their interactions with the patient, are providing drug information to the patient, are utilizing patient profiles in their practice, are participating in continuing education programs, and are developing other innovative components to their practice.

Your persistence and self confidence will help to support the continuing change in our profession that is essential to help improve patient care. Wherever you practice, make and attempt to strengthen the profession, and remember those pharmacists that gathered 136 years ago to bring some order to the educational programs of their state. Emulate them by giving that extra effort necessary to help yourself and your profession.

Fifth Year Pharmacy

The loneliness of the long distance pharmacy student.

The lives of Senior Pharmacy students show curious and unusual behavior patterns. This is the result of solid hours of studying, working and waiting in the educational process which molds us into next year's pharmacists. Whether we are involved in our studies or experience programs or a rare minute of leisure, our duty to our future patients is always uppermost in our minds. Knowing our priorities even during leisure activities, we, the Senior Class, strive to exhibit a staid and sedate manner as one would expect of us as professionals and members of the modern health care team . . .

Compounding Lab: Learning to compound with speed if not with accuracy.

Externs used to be called apprentices.

Still waiting for an antibiotics handout.

Patient care externs take a brief respite from their seemingly endless task of saving lives.

A display of applause and cheering in humble gratitude to our austere teachers and professors.

P.O. nutrition with natural products of bovine origin.

"Doc" Fallon exhibits the correct method of administering a therapeutic dose of ethanol.

Patient Care I

Your stethoscope is cold!!

I think it's a dig toxicity.

Among the pleasantries bestowed upon us by the Professional Experience Program was a month of clinical work known as Patient Care I. However, as it turned out, often our instructors were not patient, and we didn't care.

The purpose of Patient Care I was to provide us, as budding professionals, some experience as clinicians. With the intense professional interest instilled in us through the course of our academic program we eagerly took to the task of looking after our patients and their drugs. We learned how to take histories from comatose patients; determine the significance of BUN, Cr, HR, BP, CXR, T, R, Na, K and CO_2; and know how to prepare and palpate and produce a proper pulse and pressure from our patients. Overall we found there is a lot to learn to be a competent clinition. We can't know how much the efforts of our teachers: Buzz, Dave, Diane, Rob, Tom and Mike and our month in the clinical rotation mean to our careers - and most of us never will.

Isn't Patient Care I exciting?

The things I have learned in PCI . . . ah . . . um . . . ah.

Put that in your pipe and smoke it!!

Alpha Zeta Omega was established over 50 years ago in Baltimore with the express purpose of having its members successfully complete the required course in Pharmacy. Today, AZO in Baltimore is represented by Kappa Chapter, a mixed graduate and undergraduate chapter. During the past academic year several important events occurred which are unique to the U. of Md. School of Pharmacy. Most importantly, 22 new members were inducted into the fraternity, both men and women. Once again AZO is a pioneer in pharmacy for recognizing the professional equality of women and giving women equal status in the fraternity. Also of importance was the Fritz Berman Pharmacy Seminar, featuring Dr. William J. Kinnard, Jr. as the keynote speaker. The afternoon session of the seminar entailed a lecture on diabetes followed by a workshop on urinary test methods. At the conclusion a check for $100 was donated to the School of Pharmacy to supplement the visual aids previously donated by AZO.

The undergraduates, through the efforts of Brian Kahan (Class of '76) and Ira Fedder (Class of '78), have revived fraternal activity on the Baltimore campus. A cardiopulmonary resuscitation instruction course for all students was presented in April, and a number of AZO members were certified at that time. Plans are being made by the undergraduates to offer diabetic screening programs at AZO-member pharmacies starting in the fall. In addition, tutorial programs for 3rd year students, as well as orientation guidance for incoming students, will be provided in September.

Faculty Advisor - Dr. Hoopes

This year Kappa Psi Pharmaceutical Fraternity made a 'comeback' at the UMAB campus. During the last two months of the spring semester a successful membership drive was held to keep this fine organization active.

Kappa Psi Fraternity members feel that service and leadership in the Pharmacy profession and brotherhood within the organization are important facets of our life while we are in school and also after we graduate and begin our professional lives. Belonging to Kappa Psi Professional Fraternity reinforces our goal of improving the Pharmacy profession and also develops within each of us a common bond and lasting friendships with classmates whom we attended school with and those who follow after we graduate.

This year our activities included a 50-50 Split-the-Pot Raffle to raise funds, an interfraternity sponsored car rally, and set up of an organized drug utilization plan at the Peoples Free Clinic on Greenmount Ave. The clinic is going to be an ongoing project at Kappa Psi with members helping out there on a volunteer basis. This, we feel, is a real opportunity to work closely with M.D.'s and utilize in a clinical setting much of the knowledge we are taught in class. With a successful "new beginning" this year and goals set for next year, Kappa Psi is here to stay and prepared to reinforce the profession of Pharmacy now and in the future.

Iota Chapter

Phi Delta Chi is, as in past years, an example of true fraternalism. The member of Phi Delta Chi is proud of his position in this organization and the organization is equally proud of him.

This past year has been a continued growing social and professional experience for Iota. Initiating nine new members saw the active chapter grow to twenty-seven. With an increase in members came an increase in ideas and desires to produce professional and social projects. Professional projects included blood pressure screening at the Baltimore City Fair and The Medicine Shoppe in Dundalk, and pharmacy career counseling at local high schools and community colleges. Social activities included a rush party, the Sock Hop, organization of a championship softball team, numerous frat parties, Hell Night, an interfraternity car rally, and the second annual Phi Delta Chi Banquet. Also, the printing of the PILL POST is the first publication from the fraternity in the last five years. Members of Iota were also active in campus organizations, being represented in the Dorm Council, TERRA MARIAE, SGA, SAPhA, and several school and campus committees. Next year, three Phi Dexmen will assume their elected duties as the President and Vice President of the SGA, and the pharmacy representative for the Baltimore Union Pub. The continued growing involvement of the fraternity members in school and student affairs can indeed be a source of pride to all who are associated with the Phi Delta Chi Fraternity.

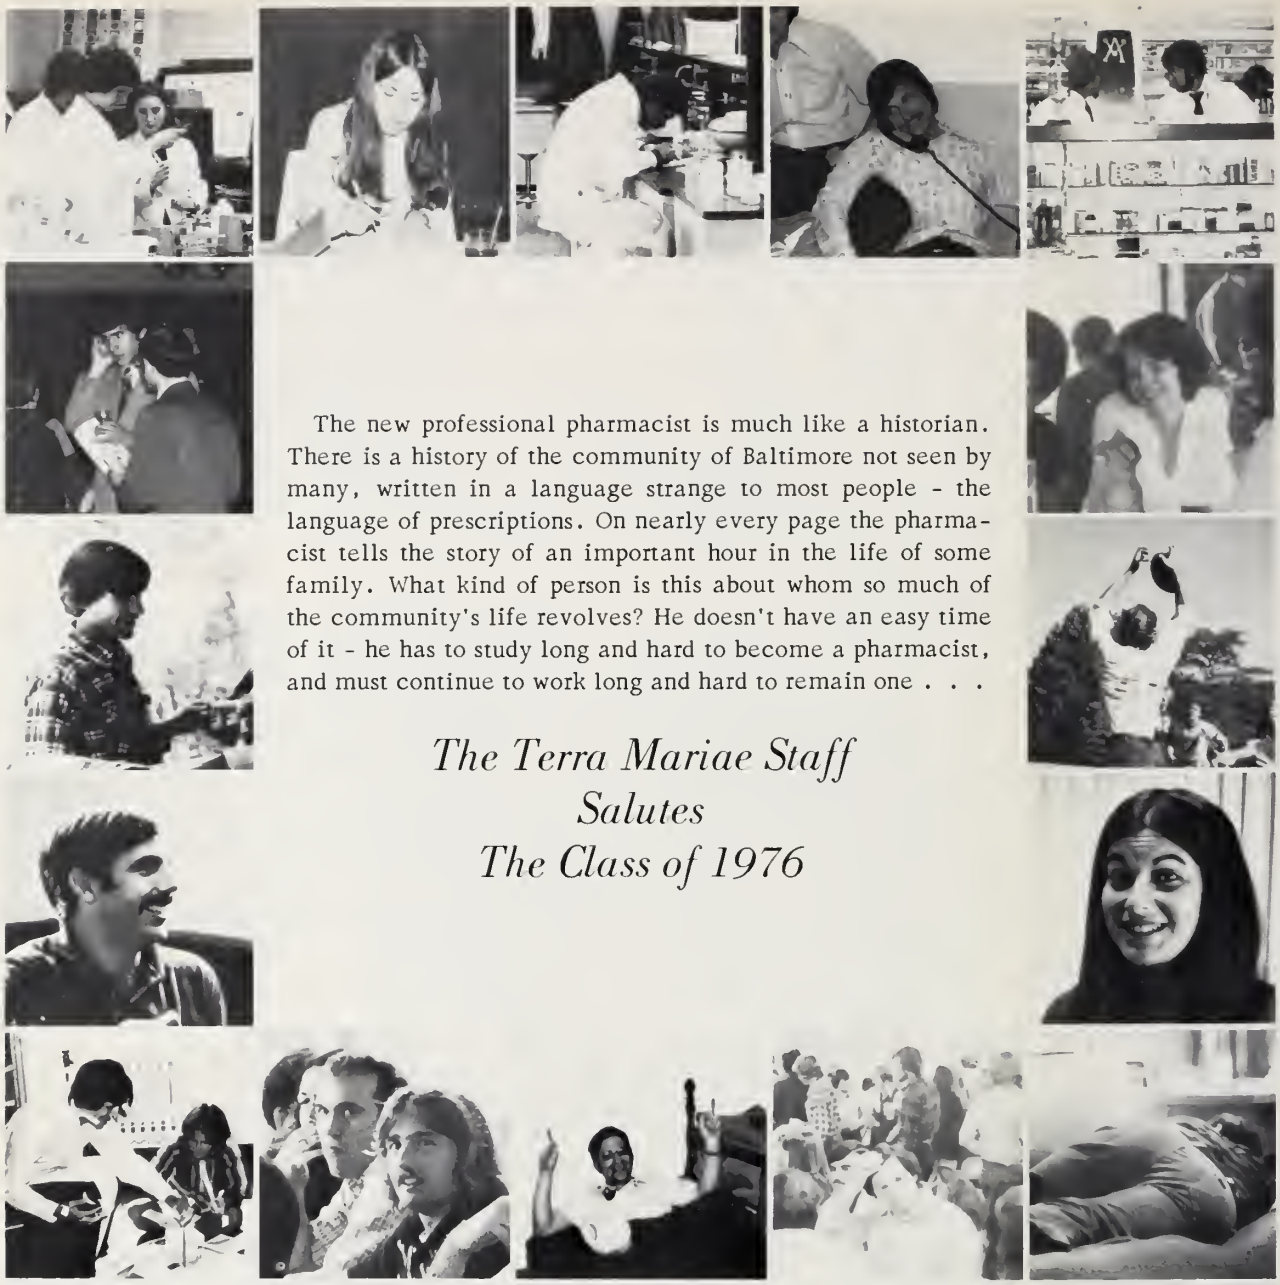
A Toast . . .

to the Class of 1976



The new professional pharmacist is much like a historian. There is a history of the community of Baltimore not seen by many, written in a language strange to most people - the language of prescriptions. On nearly every page the pharmacist tells the story of an important hour in the life of some family. What kind of person is this about whom so much of the community's life revolves? He doesn't have an easy time of it - he has to study long and hard to become a pharmacist, and must continue to work long and hard to remain one . . .

MARYLAND PHARMACEUTICAL ASSOCIATION
THE STATE PROFESSIONAL SOCIETY OF PHARMACISTS FOUNDED 1881 AN AFFILIATE OF THE AMERICAN PHARMACEUTICAL ASSOCIATION
NATHAN I. GRUZ, R. PH. EXECUTIVE DIRECTOR

June 1976

Dear Graduate of the Class of 1976:

Welcome to the ranks of pharmacy - a health care profession with an exciting, satisfying future.

Your colleagues in the profession of pharmacy invite you to accept full pharmaceutical citizenship by joining and participating in your local, state and national professional societies.

You will find the opportunities for maximum personal and professional growth in MPhA - the state representative pharmaceutical organization - which is open to all pharmacists, regardless of the category of their practice.

We look forward to the new ideas and energetic response that the now generation is capable of.

Cordially,

Nathan I. Gruz

Dedicated in Memoriam

Gone is the happy smile, the bubbly personality, the amiable greeting. The epitome of the diligent, capable, cheerful worker; her circulation cut off in its prime by a golden band. She shall be sorely missed.

To the Class of '76:

It is my recollection, and perhaps also for some of you, that I received the nickname "Startrek" during the spring of '74 in micro, my first encounter with your class. I recall distinctly that it was on a memo from Glenda Owens; however, she denied being the originator of my new appellation. Regardless, since the T.V. series had been a smashing hit across the nation, even during my undergraduate days at Michigan, I considered the play on my last name as a rather honorable dubbing and promised to remember you, the class as my "Enterprise." I find it somewhat a solemn occasion to enter into the ship's log: Star date, June, 1976. The entire ship's crew has disembarked, and they have undertaken separate journeys. We must realize, however, that all good things eventually have to come to an end.

I wish to express my sincerest appreciation to all crew members for their kind consideration of myself for the 1976 Faculty Award. This award is regarded highly by the faculty, and the distinction is certainly one of honor. Your learning experiences with me had occurred during the first two years of my career. As with many graduate schools I had been trained as a researcher; becoming a teacher was an assumed responsibility, but one for which no formal training had been received. I therefore had to educate myself first before being able to pass the necessary basic knowledge onto you. I have sincerely attempted to improve this foundation year by year as I have encountered ensuing classes. Receiving the teaching award at this time has given me a sense of grateful satisfaction for past efforts. I guess there could be a moral here - education is a never ceasing, continuing adventure, and for most people perhaps a challenge. It may not always be rightly and pleasantly presented or received but it satisfies any genuine thirst for knowledge. I have personally experienced and learned much during my two and one-half years here, and I fully expect to continue in this vein as my career progresses. May you also learn from your experiences in your chosen professional settings.

Kindest regards and best wishes for your health and happiness.

Sincerely,

Jerry D. Skarbek
